LULAV: BORROWING

Lulav: When You May Borrow

You may borrow a lulay on all days of Sukkot except the first day (or first two days outside of Eretz Yisrael). On the first (two) day(s), you may acquire a lulay and etrog by having a friend "give" them to you as a gift, even if you will later "give" them back to your friend, also as a gift.

NOTE If you intended to use someone else's lulay on the first day of Sukkot, it is considered as if the lulay is yours, even without doing the normal acquisition.

Lulav: Husband and Wife

A man's wife does not own the lulav with him (and a wife's husband does not own her lulav), but it is assumed that each gives their lulav to the other (on the first and second day of Sukkot) as a gift with a condition that the recipient will give the lulav back to the other spouse as a gift once finished.

© Copyright 2024 Richard B. Aiken | www.practicalhalacha.com