

Adoptive Parents: Acknowledging the Good

Adoptive parents must be treated well by the adopted child, acknowledging the good they did for the child (hakarat ha'tov). But they are not considered halachic parents and the child may not be required to give them the honor that is required by the Torah for natural parents.